My Castle in the Air.

Oh the world is cold,
And the world is rough;
And strong is its heavy hand;
I am growing old
And I've had enough.
Aye, more than I want to stand.
So I'll close my eyes
That burn and stare,
And up and down
To a castle wise
That is built of air.
I will climb the way is steep.
And the world may go, Aye, the world may hang;
For all that I know or care;
For of grief or woe,
There is never a pang
In my castle in the air.

My Mother.

If I should roam from shore to shore,
And search this world with roving eye,
And view each face I daily meet,
My mother's voice I could not meet;
My mother's voice I could not meet;
My mother's voice I could not meet;
Among the thousands I should see,
That one familiar, dear face,
From my mind can ne'er efface.
That mother's gentle, soothing voice,
That ever made my heart rejoice;
Ah, nevermore can welcome me, Amid the throngs on earth I see,
Then I must wait in heavenly home;
To greet her when I come,
And we shall meet, soon meet again,
In bliss forever reign,
And be parted ne'er again.

The Paragraph Pulpit.

BY EDWIN A. RUMBAULT.

My text is from Marcus Aurelius; "Everything that is according to nature can be evil." I have no doubt that fear of the natural is the source of many of the troubles of mankind. What are only the external events of life. One man is haunted by poverty, another by pain, another by death, and all because we fail to see that these are the gifts of God. They hurt us most when we try to run away from them, they are most contentedly when we use them for the life of the spirit. Man has no enemy, all are friends. All nature is on the side of the man who tries to rise. The ruinous earthquake, the desolating fire, the death-dealing pestilence and the terrible famine, hard and cruel as they seem, are all natural, and are given to us that we might

"Welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough, Each sting that does not sit nor stand, but go."

Physical evils is ever potential good. Nothing can hurt us if we receive all of the spirit it is given. Fear is a mark of the beast. The evils of life declare themselves the messengers of God and in the declaration, die; and in their ashes heaven is born.

Under the will of the late Albino R. Jenness, Pythagorean lodge, No. 11, F. & A. M., were made independent as to a permanent home. Mr. Jenness gave them the block on the corner of Main and Portland streets wherein is located the hall they have occupied for nearly 50 years. It has been known as Post-office block, owing to the fact that the post-office has been located there for several years. J. T. Whitmore has a store in the block.

The Ossified Man.

The "ossified man" has been visiting in Hiram. He is a native of Hiram. His name is Charles Gilpatrick and he is about 50 years old. In early life a peculiar change began to take place and continued until nearly the whole body became rigid and the fingers and toes of the man's hands and feet were stiff. He is fed with liquids. For three years past he has traveled on exhibition and has accumulated considerable money. It is reported that physicians at Washington have declared that his condition makes him worth a hundred thousand dollars. He has recently been in Cuba and is now about to start for England. A person is constantly in charge of him.

How to Cook Venison Steak.

"A deer that weighs 100 pounds has better steaks than a 200 pound one. Have the steaks nearly two inches thick, and big enough to cover the bottom of an old style spider, if possible.

"Now get a thick and heavy cast-iron spider red hot above the coals. Be sure and do this, because the hotter the spider is, the better. And when the spider is glowing and sparkling with heat, slip in a slice of steak. Do not use any butter or any form of fat, but let the raw meat sizzle directly upon the hot iron, and then let it sizzle and small and smoke about a minute.

"Now flop it over on the other side and repeat until the camp is so full of choking smoke and the smell of burning meat that you must carry the heated spider outdoors to get your breath.

"Tip the burnt and smoking steak on to a big plate, slash it deeply with a sharp knife and throw on the butter until the meat is afloat. Then salt and pepper to taste, after which nobody needs any directions what to do next.

"Venison cooked in this way and eaten with strong coffee and hot cream of tartar biscuit forms the best meal that it is possible to serve to kings or queens or jacks. And I know exactly what I am talking about."

The Youth's Companion Calendar for 1908 has reproduced four paintings by artists of distinction. The first of the panels is an inspiring sea scene, full of the beauty of the wild and the glory of the bound ship. The second is a fine cattle place. The third pictures an old mill at Zaandam—typically Dutch in treatment. The fourth panel depicts a "Girl with Roses"—a charming face, exquisite in color and expression.

Is Your Hair Falling Out?

A few hairs here and there are not missed, but it won't be long before they will be leaving in such large quantities that you will regret the fact that you haven't done something to prevent the ultimate end—baldness. Rexall's "93" Hair Tonic promptly stops falling hair, cures dandruff and will stimulate a new growth of hair. It has done so for others. It will do so for you. It is not sticky or gummy; will not thicken on the hair; does not become rancid; has no disagreeable odor; is clean and agreeable to use.

A REASON

Why we guarantee Rexall's Remedies. We believe that The United Drug Co., the proprietors of the Rexall's Remedies, have invented a perfect system of prescribing ready-made remedies under the trade-name "Rexall's". Each remedy is a well-tried recipe of a famous physician who is a specialist in his line.

At our store, only fifty cents a bottle. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

The "Holiday Heart."

No one believes more sincerely than I do in the value of exercise, and this belief is shared by all holiday-makers, I think. The holiday is undoubtedly an opportunity for exercise, and should be treated as such; but after all, what would be only a morning jaunt for a tiger or an antelope would be death for any man, and that which would not suffice to keep a professional athlete in form will dilate, permanently, the heart of a city clerk, says the New York American.

The due exercise for one man may be a fifty-mile walk, while for another it may be no more than the effort of preserving his balance while sitting in a carriage for an hour in the afternoon.

This is emphatically one of the good things of which one may have too much, and it is the experience of every doctor that after the holiday season he is consulted by broken-winded patients, perhaps even by patients whose ankles become puffy at night; he finds a dilated heart, and learns that his patient, who had hoped to set himself up for the ensuing year by his holiday, had instead condemned himself to months of incapacity at the very least.

I have previously suggested the introduction of the term of "holiday heart" for this condition, since I think the phrase would be instructive to the public.

We forget Nature's great law of adaptation and economy. If during 11 months of a year the demand upon a man's muscles—of which the heart is the most important—be very small, they will be adapted thereto. The vital energy will not be consumed in the upkeep of muscular tissue for which there is no use. If, then, it is desired to perform feats of swimming or climbing or walking, the only sound principle is that of Milo, who, as they say, carrying a cat every day, was at last able to deal with it full-grown upon his shoulders.

For myself I believe the most valuable attribute of a holiday is not the change for the mind, the relief from worry, the breathing time in the struggle for existence.

The best holiday, I think, is that—for most of us—in which all work is forgotten and which includes the greatest number of hours of deep and dreaming sleep and of fresh air in every hour of the twenty-four. But I have been specially asked to discuss the subject of overexertion, and I must keep to that.

Students of the matter divide exercise into two categories, according as whether it makes one out of breath or does not. Now, this is a very real and important distinction, and I would base my advice upon it. I cannot say how much exercise is proper for the man of 40 or for the youth of 20, because individuals vary; but, as I said, it is the difference between life and death at some crisis, and months of distress, at any rate.

The risk is that the ventricle may become overstretched and that you return home with "holiday heart." This is not heart disease, nor anything like it, but it may mean the difference between life and death at some crisis, and months of distress, at any rate.

My advice, then, to the elderly man is to stop short of violent exercise in this technical sense. He can enjoy himself and recuperate himself to the full without it. But this, I think, would be unnecessary counsel to the young man. His tissues are elastic and adaptable, and though examination of boys after running races readily shows temporary dilatation of the heart, that soon disappears.

But for all ages, assuming general soundness, the exercise which does not make one out of breath is safe, and it is scarcely possible to have too much of it. There is no objection to the pleasant fatigue which is compatible with appetite and with continuous and dreamless sleep. At all times this last is the very best test, and if merely to sit in the sun and do nothing produced this result, then that would be the best form of holiday.

Thousands Have Kidney

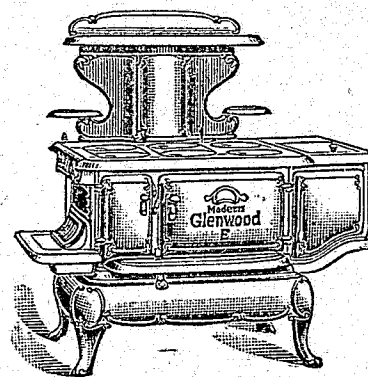

Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physician, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water, and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, without cost, by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When paper and don't writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

GILEAD.

Mrs. Rhoda E. Richardson. Mrs. Rhoda E. Richardson died in Gorham, N. H., Monday evening, Nov. 4. For a long time Mrs. Richardson has not been in good health, but for the past six weeks she had been seriously ill. She was 70 years of age. Mrs. Richardson was a native of Gilead, the daughter of Gardner Wright and Rachel Stiles, and was born Apr. 27, 1828. She was married to Edward Lynderson Richardson of Bethel, Feb. 15, 1849. Learn to Eat.

Few People in Norway Really Know How. Slow eating will solve one-half the problem of ill health. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach can with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore their digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion and the unpleasant full feeling with which so many suffer after meals.

Frank K. Kibball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, has so much confidence in the power of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion and all stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

BETHEL.

Regardless of Expense.

Brown Relief Corps served chicken pie supper at their rooms, last week Wednesday evening. Although a terrific east storm prevailed at the time, a goodly crowd was present and cleared the tables quite completely. When a chicken pie supper is advertised for 25c, it takes more than one northeast storm to prevent a crowd. A Bethel chicken pie supper is always just so fine whether 25c or 50c is charged.

Restoring Prairie Soil.

All who have taken up prairie farms will recognize the truth of the following statement of Professor Ten Eyck of Kansas in regard to them.

When the wild prairie is first broken the soil is mellow, moist and rich, producing abundant crops. After a few years of continuous grain cropping and cultivation the physical condition of the soil changes—the soil grains become finer, the soil becomes more compact and heavier to handle, it dries out quicker than it used to and often turns over in hard clods and lumps when plowed. The perfect tilth and freedom from clods, so characteristic of virgin soils, is always more or less completely restored whenever land has been laid down to grass for a sufficient length of time.

Chemical Weed Killer.

A chemical weed killer has been developed or tested by the Wisconsin experiment station in attempts to kill wild mustard, cocklebur, yellow dock, etc. The peculiar thing claimed for this poison is that when sprayed on a growing grain crop infested by weeds it kills the weeds without injury to the cultivated crop. The solution used consists of 100 pounds of iron sulphate dissolved in fifty-four gallons of water, which amount will spray an acre.

The rescript in an Oxford County case has been received from the law courts: H. L. Steinfeld vs. Henry Girard, appellant. Exceptions sustained.

Desperate Coughs.

We publish our formulas. We banish all coughs from our medicines. We want you to consult your doctor.

Ayer's

Any good doctor will tell you that a medicine like Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cannot do its best work if the bowels are constipated. Ask your doctor if he knows anything better than Ayer's Pills for correcting this sluggishness of the liver.

PREPARING FOR WINTER.

Some Timely Hints to Guide the Prudent Farmer.

October—Sow cover crops, rye and buckwheat, on ground that would otherwise be bare during winter. Late in the month harvest roots and store in pits or root cellar. Finish harvesting and storing apples, pears and grapes. Leave only hardy vegetables, such as parsnips, Jerusalem artichokes and horseradish in the field. These may be dug as needed through the winter or in early spring. Fill cold frames with lettuce, radish and onion sets for winter use. Sow spinach for spring cutting. Transplant all flowers for house use before frost. Dig and start in a dry place dahlias, cannas, gladioli and similar bulbs and roots. When the temperature goes below 50 degrees at night start a fire in the greenhouse. Plant late settings of strawberries in pots early in the month. Celery must have a final earthing up. Asparagus and rhubarb for forcing must be dug and allowed to freeze before removal to the cellar.

November—Final harvesting of cabbage, celery, roots, etc., and final planting of spinach. Make cuttings and scions of grapes, currants, gooseberries and tree fruits, tie in bundles and bury butt and upward. Stratify seeds of peaches, plums and other stone fruits and store where they will not freeze. Spread mulches on bulb beds, around shrubs, upon herbaceous borders and, when the ground is frozen hard, upon strawberry beds. Prune grapevines and other trees. Plow or dig heavy soil and leave in loose condition to freeze. Cover cold frames with straw mats or shutters on cold nights. Tidy up the place for winter. Review the season's practice and improve plans for next year.

FERTILIZING ORCHARDS.

Slow Acting Compounds Cheap and Efficient—Value of Lillage.

In fertilizing orchard lands it is to the bearing, fruiting trees that we should apply most liberally potash and phosphoric acid fertilizers, writes E. H. Scott in Country Gentleman. These are not so much to be any general rule even which can be laid down for this, as there can be with humus and nitrogen fertilization. We should always be ahead of the game, however, with these elements for several reasons, one of which may be the cost. With such slow growing plants it is just as effective and practicable for us to apply slow acting compounds as quick acting ones, and it is far cheaper to do so. After a man has had a chance to study his trees, his soil and conditions he ought to be able, with careful oversight and a little experimentation, to tell just about what the soil needs.

Tillage after all is the best fertilizing agent. It will be found that the heavier, clayey lands are nearly all sufficiently well stocked with mineral fertilizers and that it will be to the lighter soils that we must devote the most attention. With the heavier soils it is claimed, and truly, that careful, thorough tillage will render available more fertilizing elements and place them in a position where they can be used than can be done in several years by the application of materials.

It is to the three—lime, phosphates and some of the more insoluble of the potash salts—which we should look for our orchard fertilizers and aim always to have enough in the soil, so that plenty of time may be allowed for the material to change to available forms before it is necessary for the growth of the trees.

The Apple Crop.

Walter Buck, Norway, this year raised about 175 barrels more than he had last year, mostly Baldwin's, Rhode Island Greenings, Tolman Sweets and Ben Davis, and he is setting out some Wealthys.

Mr. Buck says that the Baldwin will always be the leading apple in New England and it hasn't been supplanted in the future. The local markets call for McIntoshes and it requires too much care. It should be sprayed three times to make a success in raising it, generally. The Tolman Sweets, with most raisers, are worthless on account of maggots. Northern Spies are troubled with streaks and knurls. The quality is against the Ben Davis. They are hardy, rapid growers, are early and very productive. He has trees of that variety spreading 12 to 15 feet that are five to six years old. As to the growth of apple trees, most kinds with good care should spread two feet per year for 20 to 25 years. He has R. J. Greenings spread 50 feet in 25 years.

William F. Young, Norway, this year had about 350 barrels, which is more than the yield of last year. He raised mostly Baldwin's, King, McIntosh Red, Northern Spy, Greenings, Ben Davis and Pearmain. Mr. Young has about 350 trees, some not in best bearing condition. In 1905 he had about 75 trees grafted to Baldwin's. Most of his apples are Baldwin's. They seem to be in the best development of the apple on his land are raised to the best advantage.

James L. Chase, Paris Hill, has this year 400 barrels as against 175 barrels last year. These are mostly Ben Davis and Baldwin's. Mr. Chase has about 600 trees.

F. H. Field, South Paris, from four to five hundred trees had this year about 400 barrels, which is about an average crop. He raises Baldwin's almost entirely.

D. F. Foster, Norway, raises Baldwin's chiefly. Last year he had 100 barrels and this year 300. Mr. Foster has about 500 trees mostly grafted in the past 15 years. His apples are of good size, smooth and free from worms. He believes that the Baldwin is the apple to raise.

C. E. Freeman, Norway, has about 100 trees, mostly Baldwin's. This year he had about 150 barrels, which is about the same as last year.

Frank Q. Elliott picked last year only 20 barrels and this year 225. They are mostly Red Baldwin's. Mr. Elliott has 225 trees, this includes 25 young trees and 15 grafted that will probably bear next year. Last fall Mr. Elliott bought of A. A. Lafortiere ten tons of Canada hard ash that he used for top dressing around the trees.

STUDY YOUR COWS.

Be Sure That They Are in the Producing Class.

We like our cows. Perhaps we have raised them from calves and we are prejudiced in their favor. We do not quite like to own up that we are not getting as much from them as we should. There is a haziness about the whole matter, says the Farmers Advocate, that ought not to exist in a business upon which we are depending for all that we have and all that we are.

How can we be sure that our cows are all right, that their milk is rich and that they are in the producing class, instead of living on what some one else does?

Not all of us have as yet come into possession of a testing machine. More farmers own them than used to be the case, and still probably not one in a hundred farmers have one of their own. That way of determining the value of our cows, or, seems to us to be, as yet impracticable.

Have the Milk Tested.

But other men have such machines. And, although it may be at some risk of humiliation and the dashing of a certain amount of pride, the best possible thing we can do is to take the milk of our cows to some such man and have it carefully tested. Then we need the courage to act accordingly.

But even if this doorway is shut up against us we may get a few bottles and do a little investigating on our own hook. Fill them from the milk of different cows and compare the cream that rises to the top. It will soon be possible to tell which are the best cows, the cows that are doing business for us, and the rest will be comparatively easy.

If nothing else presents itself as practicable, we may take some of the milk of our dairy into open tea cups and test the individuals in that way. Surely in some way we must find out what our cows are doing. Competition is so sharp in these days, food products are so valuable, and time and labor so important as factors in our farm operations that we cannot afford to be working along in the dark.

How to Clean the Teeth.

The proper way to cleanse the teeth is to brush from the gums downward toward the upper teeth and from the gums upward toward the lower teeth. By the method the bristles go between the teeth as well as over the front and sides. Remember that the inside of the teeth requires more careful cleansing than the part which shows. The most important cleansing of the day is the one which takes place before going to bed. No vestige of food should be allowed to cling to a tooth during the night, as this induces decay. To keep the teeth in perfect condition they should be cleaned after each meal. Any acid like vinegar will dissolve the lime of the teeth and destroy their solidity. A pleasant mouth wash when the mouth is at all sore is made by shaking up a few drops of tincture of myrrh in a little warm water. It is also useful for sweetening the breath.

The Red Hat Band.

I think we have "laws" and laws, good and bad, and need less and need more but I think there should be a law for every hunter who goes into the woods to wear a red band on his hat, writes Fly Rod in the Maine Woods.

The train from Farmington one evening this week I noticed a party of fine looking gentlemen whom I knew were from the city on a hunting trip, and one of them had a beautiful red sweater coat and another a red band on his hat. I was tempted to go and shake hands with such common sense gentlemen. There are far too many needless accidents in the Maine woods during the hunting season and "a red band on his hat" would be a law no one need object to.

STOP WOMAN AND CONSIDER

First, that almost every operation in our hospitals, performed upon women, becomes necessary because of neglect of such symptoms as Backache, Irregularities, Displacements, Pain in the Side, Dragging Sensations, Dizziness and Sleeplessness.
Second, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has cured more cases of female ills than any other medicine known. It regulates, strengthens and restores women's health and is invaluable in preparing women for child-birth and during the period of Change of Life.
Third, the great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time being published, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
For more than 30 years has been curing Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration and Organic Diseases, and it dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham, in advising. Thus she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health. Write today, don't wait until too late.

Norway Grammar Wins, 17 to 5.

Through numerous difficulties including the referee, Norway won over Paris in the above score. Some fine work was done including the end runs by the Klein Brothers, and center rushes by Barker. The youngsters had the latest plays including the double and forward passes. Paris had the heavier team and the favor of the referee but they could not compete with the skill of the N. G. S. team. The line up was as follows:
N. G. S. S. P. G. S.
H. Pike, 10... Bartlett, 10
R. Bell, 11... Newton, 11
F. Hall, 12... W. King, 12

Mother-in-law Problems.

A Mother-in-law who is really beloved by her adopted children says that she carefully schooled herself to deserve their confidence and merit their affection long years before she even so much as set eyes on them.

When her daughters and sons were in the nursery she began to look forward to the day upon which they would leave their family roof, and, clinging only to someone else instead of herself, would oblige her to take a secondary part in the scheme of their existence.
This expected fact she faced without bitterness and without regret, knowing that it is nature's law that sons and daughters shall become husbands and wives, and actually learned to hope that, just as she herself once did, they too should leave father and mother and cleave unto the completion of themselves in the helpmates of their choice.
"Study your boy's sweetheart carefully and affectionately," is the counsel given by this mother-in-law to all other mother-in-laws-elect. Do not endeavor to change those likes and dislikes. "Do not try to mould her. Leave her to discover that Jack, her future husband, hates cold mutton, and never so much as hint to her that his mother must never be put out for him without a thorough airing."
"Finally, make her love you, and when you know that she does, be happy. She will realize what you are feeling in relinquishing your boy, no one better, and while she will obey the laws of nature and take her proper place by his side, she will see that you are only half a step behind."
"With the prospective son-in-law the treatment is different. What a mother most hates is interference from his wife's mother. He is jealous of the influence she possesses and reads into every suggestion and hint that she makes a desire to interfere. His confidence is what the mother-in-law to be systematically and she must work for it systematically and with infinite tact, and, once having secured it, must foster and tend it until it becomes a habit to the young husband in prospective actuality.
It is unwise to make any young man feel that in marrying your daughter he is marrying the whole family, but equally unwise to cause him to suspect that he is being merely tolerated in the house during this engagement.

Wesley A. Stevens.
Wesley A. Stevens died at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. E. B. Wilson, at Gorham, N. H., last Friday morning at 2:30 o'clock, after an illness of about one year.

Mr. Stevens was the son of William Stevens and Martha Seavey and was born in Waterford in 1857. He lived in Waterford till he reached man's estate. He served three years in the civil war in the fourteenth Maine regiment.
At the conclusion of the war Mr. Stevens went to Riverton and lived on a farm which he carried on till incapacitated by sickness.
Mr. Stevens was twice married. His first wife was Lydia Upton of Greenwood, whom he married in 1823. In 1855 at Dover he married Mrs. Ellen M. Thompson, who survives him. He is also survived by one son, Ralph, who is a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., an adopted daughter, Maud A., and three sisters, Mrs. Orren Stevens of Norway, Mrs. J. O. Sanborn of Bethel, and Mrs. Fanning Hobbs of Berlin. Two daughters died, Winnie and Thurza Irene.

Commissioner J. W. Brackett has just inaugurated an interesting plan of identifying Sebago lake salmon in the future in order to obtain knowledge of their growth. Small silver rings have been fastened in the dorsal fins of 50 2-year-old salmon by Supt. Floyd and it is hoped that sportmen catching any of these fish may be marked with it at once notify Mr. Brackett that it may be made part of the record.

Superintendent Floyd of the Sebago lake hatchery at Raymond reports to Commissioner J. W. Brackett, now superintendent of the state fish hatcheries, that Benjamin Jones of Naples, who fished the weir on Crooked river has already caught 275 salmon and that he has taken 235 himself, 3-4 being males. In all his previous experiences Supt. Floyd said that the majority of the salmon taken were females.

The winter terms of school in Otisfield will open as follows: Nov. 18, Oaks, taught by Hazel F. Edwards; Swanton, taught by Mrs. Annie Robinson; Rile, taught by Rena Martin; Nov. 25, Spurr's Corner, taught by Della Weston; Gore, Bell Skillings; Dec. 2, East Otisfield, Ida Hill.

Chicago is to turn 350,000,000 strictly fresh laid eggs out of cold storage into the markets, so maybe there will be some eggs for the Thanksgiving pudding after all.

What the "Plebsicite" Really Is.

So many inquiries have been made to the distinguished editor of the ADVERTISER as to just what "plebsicite" means that in order to relieve the strain he has had to resort to the assistance of the bacteriologist, or in other words, the "bug editor."

After giving the matter careful and painstaking consideration, during which he has had to resort to the magnificent chemical laboratory connected with this office, and to the powerful microscopes and magnifying glasses, binoculars, powerful lime, electric, sunlights, etc., for which this office is famous, he has discovered that the "plebsicite" is a germ covered that from the way it hums when or bugs, and the sunlight (of publicity) he might be entirely justified in calling it a "humbug." This parasite also displays remarkable straddling qualities and might also be termed a "straddling bug." Now this "plebsicite" has been introduced by the republican party to kill off the "resubmission" germ which threatens to materially diminish the republican crop which is to be harvested next September.

However, the "bug editor" put a few "plebsicite" and a few "resubmission" germs under a powerful glass and watched the result, but beyond a little humming and buzzing and a little damage to the "plebsicite" does "resubmission" germ into renewed activity—having no fatal results whatever.

A distinguished republican of this county claims to be the discoverer of this famous bug, but it has all the important qualities which have been displayed by other bugs of a similar nature, which we have had occasion to analyze in our capacity of "bug editor" of this paper.

West Paris.
A man from West Paris, not our regular correspondent, writes: "Our farmers have recently been quite disturbed over the testing of their cows. William Hammond had four of his cows condemned and killed. On post mortem examination there was evidence of tuberculosis in three while in the fourth the disease was no trace of any disease whatever.
At the same time there was one cow condemned and killed for John and Ezra Lurvey and on examination no trace of tuberculosis was to be found. There is an error somewhere either in the tuberculine or thermometer. Our farmers should not suffer the loss of their good cows for the paltry sum paid by the mistake in condemning and killing healthy cows. This is a matter to be seriously considered."
Harrington Merry Makers gave us one of the most interesting exhibitions that has ever visited our place. While the sleight of hand performance was first class, the principal feature of the entertainment was the marvelous feat of the strong man that was with the show.
This was in the person of Laurus Saudra, a Dane, aged 30 years, weight 155 pounds, height 5 feet 6 inches, chest under the arms 41 inches, waist 31 inches, over biceps 14 inches, below elbow 13 inches, wrist 7 1/2 inches. It was truly wonderful to see what strength this small man possessed. He carried a horseshoe was circulated among the audience to examine and then handed to Saundra on the stage, who took the shoe in the presence of all and twisted it in his hands as if made of lead. He took a 30-pound iron ball with a chain around it and with his little finger would swing it around his head and push it the length of his arm above his head and play with it as if composed of wood. All could see and examine the iron ball for themselves.
He also took two packs of cards in his hand and twisted them into two parts the same as one piece of pastboard. Following this a 3 inch piece of pine plank with a spike was shown and examined by the audience, then handed to Saudra on the stage. He takes the spike in his bare right hand and then with a tremendous swing of his right arm he drives the spike completely through the plank with 1/2 inch of the spike through the plank. However incredulous this may seem it is a fact and your correspondent has a piece of the plank with the spike driven through the plank with his hand in his present.

Some 20 to 30 thousand barrels of apples have been lost by the late freeze-ing for want of help, notwithstanding the fabulous prices offered for help to pick apples. I noticed farmers picking apples as late as Saturday, Nov. 2. I hope farmers will not offer such late picked apples for sale, lest it will injure the reputation of the Maine apple.

week ago Mr. Cole returned to his home in the number of weeks he was there they had only been able to capture one fox and one mink.
The late rains have left our roads in a

Who Uses Hyomei?
The Best People in Norway Say Frank Kimball. Guaranteed in Cataract Troubles.
No other remedy or treatment for catarrh has ever been as popular or made so many remarkable cures in Norway as Hyomei.
The best people attest its curative virtues, says Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Norway Drug Store, who are the local agents. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the money unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof when it was introduced that it possessed unusual curative power. The Norway Drug Store, of which Frank Kimball is proprietor, is the only place in Norway that has the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction, and left it to the purchasers to be the judge.
Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cured catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew and today there is no other remedy in Norway Drug Store stock that has such a large and staple sale.
The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poison.
Try Hyomei to-day on Frank Kimball's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction. 46-47

The Bottomless Pitcher.
One of Norway's professional men had put into his cellar a barrel of cider and he thought he would test it. He took a pitcher and went into the cellar to draw some. It was not very light but he some. It was the cider running from the faucet. Still the pitcher remained light in weight. He let it run longer till it seemed as though he must have drawn gallons. Then he shut off the faucet and instituted an examination. There was no bottom in the pitcher.

Pythian Convention.
The Pythian Sisters held an all day convention in the Pythian Hall at Hallowell on Nov. 5, with Grand Chief Mrs. Elizabeth Hutchins of Hallowell presiding officer in the chair. The convention was practically a school for the rehearsal of the ritualistic work made necessary by the changing of the order which took place recently.
A dinner, which did credit to the culinary art, was served by the Hallowell Sisters in the diningroom beneath the hall. After the work of the order was finished in the afternoon a dainty lunch was served and then all took their leave agreeing that an enjoyable day had been spent.
Among the assemblies represented were Glen Ellis Temple of Andover and Evergreen Temple of this place. Following were present from Evergreen Temple: Mrs. Amanda Sheeran, Mrs.
Edith Bryant, Mrs. C. Jackson, Mrs.
Clarence Jackson, Mrs. Alice Sessions, Mrs. Alton Coffin, Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. Orin Bowker, Mrs. Lola Foster, Percis Purington, Mrs. Austin.

during the summer are boarding with Mrs. Edith Bryant. Mr. Harris has had charge of the milk going into Portland for some years, leaving here on the early train in the morning and as Mrs. Sheeran's house is some distance from the station on account of business it would be hard to walk during the winter.

Mrs. Ansel Dudley is slowly recovering from her severe illness, which called for Dr. Dudley to California, where she is stopping with her children, Dr. and Mrs.
Bookman of Portland. She expects to return to Maine in the spring. Mr. Dudley's trip covered a distance of more than 7000 miles.

Little "Woodie," the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George England of this place, displays more than ordinary intelligence. Although but two and one-half years old she can speak considerable French and her conception of proper language is such that she often calls the attention of her playmates to their grammatical errors. She is endowed with an ability of comprehension and understanding rarely found in one so young and which makes her a very interesting child. She has a fairly like form and a face that expresses intelligence, fine feeling and refinement. Mr.
England will be recognized in this vicinity as a man of talent, is well known as a writer of poetry, short stories, magazine and newspaper articles, is a graduate of Harvard University. Mrs. England is a graduate of Emerson School of Oratory in Boston. Their summer home is here but they usually go to Philadelphia or New York to spend the winter.

A Rallying Cry at the East Ditch in Battle of Clothes.
To the Editor: Wanted—A society for the preservation of our pants. For men only.
Brethren, the blow has fell.
In September they took our hips away from us.
Now they are going after our frock coat.

Is it not time for every true patriot to climb his trousers firmly about him with a trunk strap and a yale lock and make heroic resolves to resist them to the last stitch of his pistol pockets.
Hast noticed, fellow sufferer, the new style cutaway coats they are wearing these fine October days?
Has not? Then list! It looks for all the world like a man's lapels, buttonholes, cuffs, cutaway pattern in front, little tails hanging down behind, looking like a pair of trousers just as an faint and all fresco the cafe au lait as you please.
And then of course the hips are missing.
Why, honest, brethren, the only way, sometimes, that you can tell they are not men is by the fact that they pass the barber shop and go in the ice cream place.
Long ago they got our hat, our neck-tie, our vest, our shoes, our socks, our shirt front, our walking stick and our cuff links.
Summer before last they took our suspenders.
Now they take our coats and imitate our straight-up-and-down hips, to make the deception more complete, deceitful wretches what they are!
Hence the pressing need of getting together and forming a league for the purpose of saving our trousers before it is too late. All good men should join in the movement.—(Chicago Tribune.)

Professional safe blowers are enjoying themselves all through Maine, evidently for funds to carry them through the coming winter.

Kaiser and Admiral.
A good story is being told in Berlin of the Kaiser and an old admiral who is a fine old sea dog and an uncommon good frenchman. The etiquette of courts prescribes that when the sovereign has done eating the course has to be removed, whether the rest of the diners have finished or not. The Kaiser was very fond of the rough old admiral, whose sea talk amused him immensely, and on one occasion when the admiral was dining with the emperor a dish was served to which the admiral was inordinately devoted. It so happened that the emperor did not care for it and had very soon finished. The footmen began to remove the plates but the old admiral, who did not mean to be balked of his favorite dish, rapped the servant who tried to take his plate over the fingers with his fork and cried out: "Gedite weg," much to the astonishment of the emperor and the rest of the guests, who were bursting with laughter at this terrible breach of etiqquette.—London P. T. O.

A Supply of Potting Soil.
It is always well to lay in a good supply of potting soil in good season.
The want of it when badly needed is always a great annoyance. Out suds from a rich old pasture and pile them up where they will speedily rot. Haul sharp sand, muck, fine woods earth, etc. Dig the old manure out of the hotbeds and make a compost heap, mixing in all other materials suitable for potting, hotbed and cold frame soil.

The Old Fashioned Boy.
There is a price on the head of the old-fashioned office boy. Somehow he has disappeared. Business men are diligently seeking him, and if he reappears he will find hundreds of positions awaiting him. This is said on the authority of one who knows.
The other day a staid old merchant advertised for an old-fashioned boy, active, intelligent and square. He hoped that his advertisement might meet the eyes of an old-fashioned father, who had a chip of the old block at home. This merchant knows there are boys and boys, but like Eugene Field, he believes there are no boys like the good old boys.
But the good old boys are scarce. The race is almost extinct, one might venture to say. Where they have gone and how they went are problems which others must solve. The fact remains that their number is few, which undoubtedly is a condition to be deplored.
For the boys who started out to earn their living 25 or 30 years ago were, in their humble sphere, useful members of society. They found many of them today occupying positions of trust, or perhaps at the heads of the firms they served intelligently and well.
They began in the old-fashioned way by reaching the office long before the sun had risen, and they stayed there till the sun had set. They were not paid by the hour, but by the day. They were not then they dusted the desks and filled the ink wells, put fresh ribs in the pen-holders and arranged the blotting pads keeping a hot fire in the office stove was another of their duties, and they saw to it that the ashes did not fly over the floor.
The letters and bills they filed away in such an orderly manner that none was lost or mislaid, and all were available at a moment's notice. In taking press copies of letters written in long hand, the old-fashioned boys were careful not to blur them, and when the envelopes went out they bore the proper amount of postage. And the stamps, by the way, were not used for their own correspondence. They remembered that the stamps were the property of their employers.
Such youngsters had been trained and educated according to the methods of their day. Politics was properly instilled in them. They knew how to receive an office caller with courtesy.
They could say "Yes sir," instead of "All right" or "Whatever want?" and they touched their caps to those whom they recognized as their superiors.
And their personal appearance! It was a pleasure to look upon them. The old-fashioned boy went to bed early, had a solid sleep, and was ready for work next day, with his wits about him. His shoes were blacked, his clothes were brushed, and face had obviously been under the pump. Moreover, his fingers were not stained with nicotine, and when he turned Oxford High school was defeated by Oxford Independents in their annual football game Saturday afternoon on Baker's field by a score of 27 to 5.

After the first five minutes of play the Independents carried the ball over the line for a touchdown but failed to kick goal. Walker kicked to Adams on 15 yard line, who ran to the left with good interference for 30 yards. G. Heslop was sent around right end for 8 yards, Lesaw through left guard but O. H. S. defense was strong on that side and the result was no gain. With a neat trick play the ball was sent across the line for another touchdown. Again the Independents failed to kick goal.
Adams kicked to Scribner who fumbled and when the referee pulled the players apart an Independent man picked up the ball. O. H. S. tried hard to hold but on the third try G. Heslop was sent over for another touchdown and the goal was kicked. With six minutes to play Adams kicked to Thayer who netted 25 yards. Walker tried left and for 9 yards then Capt. Thayer and Walker pulled off a neat forward pass which gave them their first and only touchdown. O. H. S. failed to kick goal. First up with the score of 10 to 5.
In the second half the Independents had things their own way. O. H. S. was never dangerous. Bowie was shifted to left half and Lesaw to right end with nothing but straight line plunges. The "pig skin" was carried over the line by Lesaw. Again and again did Heslop, Bowie and Daniels, the famous trio of backs, plough through O. H. S. for big games.
O. H. S. lost all hopes in this half while the Independents came back with renewed strength. Jacques, Chandler and Wing played a star game on the line for Independents while A. Delano, Pratt, Walker and Thayer excelled for O. H. S.
The game was a good one to watch and full of brilliant plays. Line up as follows:
Independents..... W. Heslop
S. Pratt..... W. Wing
A. Delano..... G. Chandler
C. Walker..... M. Bowles
Cash..... F. G. Jones
Barn..... F. E. Adams
Scribner..... F. E. Adams
Thayer, Capt..... G. Heslop
Flood..... J. B. Lesaw
A. Walker..... J. B. Lesaw
H. Pratt..... R. B. Lesaw Score, Independents 27, O. H. S. 5.

loading on one hundred and fifty barrels, but as luck would have it he broke down operated upon Oct. 23d for appendicitis, is making steady progress towards recovery. Mr. Barnett's case was very severe and his convalescence will be slow, but there is no reason why he should not regain good health.

Tuesday Nov. 5th, Wilbur, the eight years old son of Solon Downing of East Oxford, was taken sick and rapidly developed symptoms of appendicitis. Saturday there was considerable tenderness around the appendix, also a suspicion of typhoid fever and as a precautionary measure the boy was taken to the C. M.
G. hospital.

Wednesday night was children's night with the Pythian Sisters at their regular parents were members of either the K.

On account of the bad storm the gathering was small, but the enthusiasm of those who did attend made up for the lack of numbers. The children were served with a treat of cake, nuts and candy.
Prof. Harrington's merry-makers were with us three nights of last week.
Wednesday night on account of rain no show was given. The entertainment

Orrington M. Hanscom.
Deputy Superintendent of Boston Police Died from Chinchitis of the Liver.
After a sickness lasting more than six months Orrington M. Hanscom, deputy superintendent of Boston police department, died Thursday, Nov. 7, at 3 p. m., of Boston city hospital from chinchitis of the liver. Mr. Hanscom's health had not been of the best for three years and in July 1905 was operated on at Maine General hospital in Portland for gall stones. A prolonged convalescence he recovered and returned to his duty.
Mr. Hanscom enjoyed fairly good health until about six months ago. Since that time he has been gradually failing.
Two months ago he was taken to Portland for treatment, but grew gradually worse and was brought back to Boston.
When his condition became critical he was taken to Boston City hospital, when he was pronounced hopeless. On Thursday at 9 a. m. he became unconscious, dying at 3 p. m.
Mr. Hanscom was born in Oxford, Jan. 19, 1848. When 16 years of age he enlisted in the 17th Maine Volunteers as drummer boy. Was taken prisoner at Chancellorsville and sent to Libby prison, was exchanged in a short time and returned to his regiment serving until close of war.
After the war was over he returned to Oxford and married Catherine Robinson.
In 1871 Mr. Hanscom moved to Portland Soon after he went to Wakefield, Mass., where he was the first policeman that town ever had.
In 1878 he was a member of Boston police force, and 1878 was promoted to rank of inspector. He was a member of the famous back squad, and their work became of national reputation. At the end of a long and bitter trial Deputy Hanscom was dismissed from the force.
He again joined the Pinkertons and was made assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton detective agency in Boston.
He materially aided the defence in the famous Lizzie Borden murder case, and it was the public opinion at that time that his work had much to do with the clearing Miss Borden from the charge of murder.
During the late Governor Russell's first term public opinion was so strong that the Hanscom case was again taken up and he was reinstated with the rank of deputy superintendent, which he has held until his death. He was genial and kind, not only to his superiors but also to those over whom he had charge.
Socially he had a host of friends and his work was as good as his bond.
Mr. Hanscom is survived by a widow and two children; Arthur Hanscom of Boston and Mrs. Otto Pierce of Winchester.
Funeral services were held at the 2nd Universalist church, corner of Columbus avenue and Clarendon street, Boston, at 2 p. m., Sunday, Sept. 9, W. H. Pierce detailed one captain, two lieutenants, four sergeants and 64 patrolmen to act as escort.
Monday afternoon the remains were brought to Oxford. A short service was held, Tuesday, at 10 a. m., in the Congregational church, Rev. F. E. Fetherick Newport officiating. The interment was in Oxford cemetery.

HANOVER.
Stage Route Discontinued.
Great indignation is felt throughout the whole town, and some adjoining towns, over a notice received last Wednesday stating that the stage between Hanover and Lake Umbagog was to be discontinued after Nov. 15th. This will be a great inconvenience to every one in town and indeed to all the patrons of the route, and especially so to the business men, who were in the habit of from and taken to the railroad by the stage when there were no passengers.
Petitions and remonstrances are already being circulated and it is hoped that the stage will soon be put on again if it being taken off.
Six deer have been brought into town during the past week.
